Dear Reader,

Microsoft has been singled out for unfair business practices, however these same practices are being used by every company on the planet. So, why is Microsoft under the microscope, because they are successful. They have great success because the LISTEN to what the consumer wants and then they went out and built it. Should anyone be punished for successes? This is just a waste of my tax dollars and the nations time,

What is needed is not litigation but competition. Some needs to come up with a product as good as the one Microsoft has.

Thank you
